6.1 Recreation Campus Master Plan Update (Nathan Torres, Parks and Recreation Director)

Parks and Recreation Director Nathan Torres gave a brief update on the Recreation Campus Master Plan. He outlined the various community focus groups that participated in planning exercises to provide direction for the creation of a master plan for the Recreation Campus. At the second open house, Kimley Horn will present the three concept plans that have been developed as a result of the meetings. Director Torres turned over the presentation to Kimley Horn to recap the process they used to create the three concept plans. Kimley Horn attended community meetings and gave the citizens an opportunity to provide input on programming and facility needs for the Recreation Campus. A Dot-ocracy exercise was used to create a matrix that helps prioritize programming for the recreation building, aquatic center and the park. Based on the top priorities of the community, several diagram templates were developed, and a variety of groups participated in "charreting" the templates to maps of the 86-acre site. Kimley Horn requested feedback from the commissioners on the three final concepts. The three composites all included: a recreation center, aquatics, multi-use fields, courts, baseball diamonds, parking lots, group ramadas and an amphitheater. The commission shared their thoughts and concerns for each of the layouts. The next step will be for Kimley Horn to utilize the feedback from the commission and the open house to refine the recreation campus design.
